BUSINESS IN THE OTHER COURTS.

Testerday the case of the Bagle Manufacturing Comany, of Georgia. vs. Simeon Draper, was concluded in the United States Circuit Court before Judge Nathantel oman and a jury. It was an action to recover $4.725. value of 35 bales of cotton, and $2.189 69 for the deon of the same. This cotton was sold in this city by the defendant when he was acting as agent for the government for the sale of property setzed or abandoned in the South during the war; and it was claimed by the demence that the seizure and sale in question were made laring the war. By direction of the Court the tury found a verdict for the plaintiff, on the ground that the otton had been seized in December, 1865, when neither war nor martial law existed in the United States. The use of Mary E. Wright against the same defendant, chich is now on trial, involves a question similar to that aised in the above cause. The government propose to eave to the jury to say whether at the date in question he rebellion had terminated.

A suit has been commenced in the United States Dis-frict Court by the government to recover $2,500 penalty from Andrew J. White, for failing, a alleged, to stamp proprietary medicines. In the United States Circuit Court yesterday Judge me time ago a man named George W. Smith, who rase a Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue in the forthern district of Mississippi, absconded, as is atleged with some public funds, to the amount of about $25,000, and for this offence it appears that he has been indicated, to was arrested in Connecticut by one E. P. Haten, who receeded to take him back to Mississippi; but, when may got as far as Newark, Smith gave Hatch the slip in the cars and managed to escape from him. On the 20th of August last Hatch represented the matter to Chief Beputy Marshal Kennedy, of this district, who detailed Deputy Robinson to look after Smith. Robinson, acting or his instructions, went to several places and made ded in capturing Smith the day before yesterday at son, about 70 miles from Boston, and then prought on to New York. The alleged fugitive is now locked up in Ludlow Street Jall, and in a day or two will be taken back to Oxford, Miss., by Chief Deputy Marshal Kennedy and Deputy Robinson, there to await his trial on the charge that has been preferred against him.

Woodruff rendered a decision in the collision case of the New Jersey Transportation Company against the proeller John Tyler. The decree of the Court below con-emned the vessel, and the judgment of Judge Woodruff saintains that decree.

The case of ex-Sheriff Brennan and his late deputy, mields, who were held legally accountable for the escape of Genet, was argued at considerable length yester—wher, on a motion to panish them for contempt of Court not conveying Genet to the City Prison after his considerable length and the conveying Genet to the City Prison after his considerable at the conveying the considerable of the property lands. ion. THE BANKRUPTCY OF JAY COOKE & CO.

Their Dealings with the Government-Alleged Counterfeit Bonds.

Alleged Counterfeit Bonds.

The United States in 1871 brought an action against Jay Cooke and others to recover the amount of 18 instruments. These purported to be 7-30 coupon notes of the United States, with interest thereon, and were, as alleged, presented to the Assistant Treamer of this city. This officer paid the amount of those bonds. The first count in the declaration match money had and received to and for the use of the United States; that such money was obtained upon the United States; that such money was obtained upon the occasion of the defendants having delivered to the plaintiffs therefor what purported to be a cer-min obligation of the United States known as when received, believed to be genuine. It is alleged that the representations and inducements of the defendant makes at the time led the United States and their subcers to receive the note as genuine. The Court also effect that the note and coupon were counterfeit. The mesond count set up the terms usual in actions of assembles. The plea was the general issue. This case has already undergone trial in the United States District Court, before Judge Blatchford, and the facts have been fally reported in the Harlan. Judgment was rendered to the two the presence from the courter of Judge Daniels' remarks that he would visit upon the accused the full preported in the Harlan. Judgment was rendered

At the trial it was contended that the notes which the plaintiffs paid had not been received from the detendant: that if the plaintiffs did pay them they obtained them from somebody else besides the detendants. THE GENET ESCAPE.

Ex-Sheriff Brennan and His Deputy Shields Called to Account-They Are Fined $350 Each and Sent to Jail for Thirty Days-The Prisoners in Ludiow Street Jail.

Birect Jail.

The troublesome phase connected with the escape of Beary W. Genet, and regarding which there has been so much talk and so many surmises of greatly divergent character—that is, the disposition that would be made of ex-sherid Brennan and his whilem deputy, Mr. Shields—has at length been settled. When the fugitive "Prince Hal." In his seven leagued boots or otherwise—for the Herald will meet him at every step of progress, even if he takes the wings of the morning and files to the uttermost parts of the earth—reads the account of the measure of judicial punishment meted out to his kindly guardians, it is probable that, like Marius at the ruins of carthage, he will fail into a gravely meditative mood, and, as he puffs away at his cigar, call down bensens on their heads and feel thankful that they got off so cheaply. After two postponements the case of Brennan and Shields peached yesterday a hearing in the Court of Over and Strimber before Judge Daniels. At half-pust ten o'clock, when the Court assembled, the room was crowded, as it was well known that an effort would be made to dispose of the matter. Ex-Sheriff Brennan was promptly the left. pose of the matter. Ex-Sheriff Brennan was promptly on hand, taking his accustomed seat on the left of the Judge's bench-the force of habit, perhaps. His late subordinate, Mr. Shields, was, however, more modest and took a seat by his comment, Mr. William E. Burrill. The District Altorney, Mr. Phelips, was also promptly in attendance. If course it was well known that the pretext of the previous delays was to give time for the capture and production of denot. But denot was not produced, although was also give time for the capture and production of denot. But denot was not produced, although was discovered by the capture and production of denot. But denot was not produced, although was discovered by the capture and production of denot. THE COURTS. | emissaries have been so trequently reported as for close on his tracks, and it is scarcely probable that present thought that he would be produced. All w present thought that he would be produced. All watched the proceedings, however, with currous interest.

Mr. Burrill opened his side of the case by first reading an affidavit of Mr. Brennan, simply setting forth that the commitment of Genet never came into his hands. He next read the affidavit of Mr. Shelds, stating that he was not on duty, but accidentally came into court just after the jury brought in the verdict against Genet, and that Mr. Valentine, a court officer, received from Judge Daniels the commitment and handed it to the denoment, who was not then antibrized to represent the Sheriff, and said:—"Take this man into custody; I don't wish to have anything to do with him." Some one standing near said:—"Take this man into custody; I don't wish to have anything to do with him." Some one standing near said:—"Take charge of the man." Mr. Allen, Assistant District Attorney, saked. "Who represents the Sheriff?" He answered, "I do." Then he was directed to take the prisoner away and he did so. On the following day the case was adjourned to Monday. No new instructions were given to deponent, and he took the prisoner back to his house, where it was publicly known he had spent the preceding night. Mr. Phelos read an affidavit from Mr. Allen, Assistant District Attorney, that he called the attention of beputy sheriff shields to the fact that the commitment was "to the City Prison." and that he replied, "I understand so." Mr. Burrih read other affidavits and also the letter written to the Sheriff by Assistant District Attorney, that the complaint was that the sheriff did not take to prison the prisoner handed over to his custody with the commitment was that the sheriff did not take to prison the prisoner handed over to his custody with the commitment was committed to the custody of the Warden of the City Prison." He Judge Daniels having to go into the General Term, the further argument was here adjourned to half-past three P. M.

RESURING THE ARADERST.

On the reassembling of the Court the room was again crowded, Mr. Brintan resumble the room was again that the Sheriff was not charged with any duty in respect to the execution of the so cailed commitment. It was not directed to the sheriff, was not delivered to or received by him and never passed through his office. The circumstances under which the paper came into the possession of Mr. Shields were stated in the adidavit, and in undertaking the execution of the warrant if he did so) Shields did not act as one of the Sheriff seputies or represent or bind the Sheriff. Under the laws relating to the city of New York the Sheriff is not charged with the custody or control of criminals until after judgment, and in such case the duty in respect to them is restricted to the removal of prisoners to prisons outside of the city limits. The sheriff had not charge of the city limits. The sheriff had not charge of the city limits. The sheriff had not charge of the city limits. The sheriff had not charge of the several Courts were appointed by the Court, and were not the appointees of the Sheriff nor in any way subject to his control. Even if the Sheriff was charged with any duty in respect to the prisoner he was not guilty of any omission of duty in not taking him to the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose; because, if the City Prison, but for some other purpose in the top purpos and there.

Mr. Burrill said that he blamed no one for this state of things. He simply stated the fact as it existed. When Genet was brought into court on Saturday morning the District Attorney and his officers well knew that Genet had not passed the night in the City Prison.

Mr. Phelps, interrupting, read an extract from the affidavit of Mr. Allen, Assistant District Attorney, setting forth that he told Mr. Shields, when he took charge of denet, that he was to comply with the order of the Court and hand the prisoner over to the castody of the Mr. Berrill insisted on his previous declaration, that it was well known at the time that Genet was not to go to the City Prison.

Judge Baniels said there was no essential difference as to the facts in the case. He then recited the tacts as agreed upon on both sides. Coming to the order of commitment, he declared that nothing could be more simple. It told the officer having the prisoner in charge to deliver him into the custody of the Warden of the City Prison. This was the plain mandate of the Court. This mandaic had been disobeyed. He could not regard it otherwise than wiful disobedience. As to Mr. Brennan, it was clear that when he gave to Mr. Shields the letter he had received from the District Attorney, giving warning of a possible attempt to rescue the prisoner, and did not then tell his deputy to take the prisoner, for the latter's safety. He, therefore, must regard Mr. Brennan as guilty of urrill said that he blamed no one for this state of He simply stated the fact as it existed. When

He felt it his duly to innict the fulless pensity allowed by the statute.

The sentence was that each should pay a fine of $250 and be committed to jail for 30 days.

It was very clear from the outset of Judge Daniels' remarks that he would visit upon the accused the full pensity of the law, and, therefore, none were surprised, except that no severer bensity could be imposed. As for Mr. Brennan, he evinced no surprise, but smiled and chatted in his accustomed could in manner. Mr. Shields was evidently taken a little aback. He turned paie at first, but soon railled and assumed an easy, indifferent air. The ex-sheriff and his late deputy were then removed from the court by Sheriff Conner and his deputies.

The ball had been fixed at $10,000, and he maintained that this was excessive and unreasonable, especially as the witness was already held under $5,000 ball on a charge in the State Court.

Mr. Drake spoke in opposition to the motion.

Commissioner Betta, in view of the importance of the case, the pocumiary interests involved and the fact that the prosecution could not move a step without the testimony of Hoffman, declined to reduce the ball, which he did not deem unreasonable under the circumstances.

The case was then, by consent of counsel for both parties, adjourned for a week.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS-TRUL TERM-PART 2.

A Six Years' Fight and Still Fighting. Betore Judge Loew.

Hamlet in his famous sollboury would have dwelt a little longer on 'the law's delay" had he ever been the unfortunate victim of a lawsuit, and it is not unlikely that the first promulgator of the "might makes right" unfortunate victim of a lawsuit, and it is not unlikely that the first promulgator of the "might makes right" doctrine made the discovery after a long and worrying court litigation. This prefatory sentence is suggested by the retrial of a case just commenced in this Court, and which has already been in Hitigation for six years, and the facts of which are already familiar to the readers of the Heaalin law report. The plaintiff in the suit is Captain William Leech, and the detendants the Atlantic Mutual Insurance company. Captain leech was captain of the packet ship Pacquet de Tampico. In the carly part of 1867 she sailed from this city for Mexico. The Captain hid away for safe keeping 2,478 Spanish doubloons under the stone ballast, this being money he had received as advances for arms urnished to the liberal government in Mexico. The vessel and cargo of mahogany and this money he had insuranced in the Atlantic Mutual Insurance Company. It is unnecessary to go through all the details of the voyage; how, on account of the action of a spy, they were obliged to throw overboard a new instalment of amunitions of war intended for the Mexican liberal government, and how the vessel was searched, but the money not found. On the way back, while in the Gulf of Mexico, they met a heavy gale, the vessel became waterlogged, and they had to abandon her and take to the small boot, which, tortunances and have been fighting Captain Leech in the courts ever since. They allege fraud, conspiracy, and that the vessel was cuttled. Some time since the case was partly tried, when the defendants withdrow a juror. It is possible the present trial will occupy several daya. On both sides there is a large array of counsel, Mesera Abbott. Fuller and Da Costa appearing for the plaintiff, and Mesers. Choate & Hamil and ex-Judge Porter represent trial will occupy several daya.

He testified that Magdalena, the reputed wife, told him that for the two years preceeding his death she had cut his hair; witness had borrowed $500 from deceased and called twice a year had borrowed $500 from deceased and called twice a to pay interest; deceased usually sat in an armo specchies, and almost motionics; all conversation was carried on through "Lena." who acted as interpreted; the principal was due July, 1873, and she counted and re-ceived it, and wontaway to another part of the room with it; she spoke to witness about the oldest son of the deeverything, but the old man would not do anything if she was not satisfied; witness often tried, as an old friend, to understand deceased, but could not. Wilham lieury Arnoux very skillfully cross-examined the witness, clicking the fact that while the winness formulations of the deceased could only after inarriculate sounds to "Lens," and she, with her our to his mouth, would catch them and translate them to papers, putting his mouth to his ear, but said he could not understand his father; "leans" came up, put her mouth to his car for a second, then her ear to his mouth, instantly removed it and said to the company prosent she understood all, and then commenced, in the German language, to talk for five minutes.

The next witness called by George F. On cross-examination by Mr. Arnoux, the witness gave many bunorous answers. In answer to the question wheher witness and deceased had not often indulged in spress, he said "Yea." "How often?" "Whenever we felt like it. I don't call them drunken spress. I call it getting happy." When the question was again asked how often, he answered, "If he had known he was going to be so closely pressed about it he would have made memoranda about it in his day book,"

COURT OF CENERAL SESSIONS. Alleged Arson.

Before Judge Sutherland. The trial of Thomas Murths, who is indicted for arean in the second degree, was commenced yesterday in this Court. Assistant District Attorney Rollins appears for the people, while Mr. Howe represents the accused. The proof adduced by the presecution thus far is that Martha kept a liquor store at No. 34 Bullivan street, upon which he had an insurance in the Exchange Fire Insurance Company for $1.500 that a fire was discovered terming. he had an insurance in the Exchange Fire Insurance Company for $1,500; that a fire was discovered issuing from the eaves of a wooden extension on Sunday, the 8th of June, and that when two of the witnesse discovered it they halloced to Murtha, who was in the adjoining yard, telling him his place was on fire, but he did not pay any attention to them, and that the value of the liquors and fixtures found in the store after the fire was subdued, which was quickly done, was about $400. The prosecuting officer claimed that the motive which actuated the accused was to derraud the insurance company. The fact was brought out that a large pie bakery adjoining the premises of Murtha and other houses in the vicinity were completely destroyed by fire on that morning. The prosecution claim, however, that they will prove that the roof of the extension was not burned, and that the accused made the extensive fire which occurred near by the pretext to set bis own place on fire. The case will be resumed this morning and will probably occupy the whole day.
